What is BCS Practitioner in Business Analysis Practice

This exam training gives you tools to obtain the BCS Practitioner Certificate in Business Analysis Practice exam, this through practical assignments and exam practice questions.

The exam focuses on the strategic aspects of the Business Analysis. Topics such as: how do you measure the performance of the current situation. Qualitative and quantitative techniques you can use to examine the current business situation. The CATWOE technique to analyze the perspectives of the stakeholder and the BAM technique to make an abstract visualization of the current or desired future situation. In addition, the aspects that should be described in a business case are discussed. The focus of this training is on obtaining the diploma and less on the use of these techniques in practical situations.

The training is based on the BCS books Business Analysis (fourth edition) and Business Analysis Techniques (third edition).

This training is part of the trajectory leading to the International Diploma in Business Analysis.
