What is Testing for non-Testers

More and more companies are developing their software in an Agile way. This has a lot of influence on the daily activities of a development team. You have to master all disciplines. Are you part of such a team and testing is one of your new duties?

During this training you will get insight in the basic principles of testing. Questions like: What is testing? Why is structured testing important? What do I need to consider in structured software testing? In a half day workshop we will discuss these topics and practice using everyday examples. You will learn how to structure your tests and how to register the results.

Who should attend Testing for non-Testers

Are you a member of an Agile team and testing will be part of your work? Or you work in an Agile team and you have never done any software testing, now you are expected to start testing? If this is the case, this training is just for you!
