What is To-the-point Writing

Do you write in a structured, concise and understandable way? Do you know exactly who you write for and how you clearly convey your information in writing? Do you know how to make your text attractive and readable, and therefore more effective? Or do you write a lot and would you now like to know how to write effectively? We help you to produce something effective from your text because you know how to approach writing.

How do you ensure that your text is read and understood? How to make sure that your message comes accross? In this competence training the emphasis is on understanding the steps involved in the writing process. By linking this to your writing, you learn how to write easier and faster effective texts. After completion of the training:

- You can write a focussed and reader-oriented text by following a structured approach to writing
- You understand how you can increase the quality and effectiveness of text
- You are able to assess, on the basis of certain criteria, text from yourself and others
