What is Digital in a day

Major changes and strong disruption in innovation and technology are the order of the day. The speed in which technology is changing, is higher than ever before. These digital developments create exciting opportunities, but also the obligation to continuously keep up with the most recent developments.

As authors of Capgemini's well-known annual 'Technovision' trend report, Capgemini CTOs Ron Tolido (Global CTO, Insights & Data) and Frank Wammes (CTO Capgemini Europe) have developed the training 'Digital in one Day', which quickly updates you about tomorrow's technologies.

During this one-day group event "Digital in a Day", the Capgemini CTOs update you with all the crucial technological developments for Digital Business Operations. In addition to gathering knowledge in the area of innovation and technology, an important part of the event is talking about the current challenges .

Furthermore, in the training you will work on your own cases in a unique, interactive way. During this interactive part of the day, together with other participants, you think about the relevant developments in your business area, how you can use them successfully and how explain the digital story to others.

Who is Digital in a day for

The training 'Digital in one Day' is aimed at anyone interested in being digital. A specific technical background is not required, because the training is about the oppportunities with current technology; What does this mean for my organization?

Are technological changes affecting your organization or do you foresee that happening soon? Then Digital in one Day is a must for you!

In one day you will be informed about all of the most recent digital developments
