What is Why in a day

What do you tell when you are asked who you are? Do you tell what you do or what your passion is? What do you believe in? What do you find important? Why do you do things the way you do them? What is your core message?

If you work on your core message and propagate it in an inspiring way, it has consequences. That leads to movement. Your 'passion', your 'values' and your 'why' are the starting point of your personal vision and for inspiring others. "People believe in what you believe" is the core message of Simon Sinek. If you know why you do things the way you do them, that is your anchor. The "how" you do things and "what" you do is an easy result.

In this training we will search for your 'why', 'mission' or 'conviction' and we translate that into an inspiring personal core message. You can then use this key message to inspire your environment and make an impact.

Who should attend the Why in a day

This training is for people who (want to learn) believe that personal leadership and expressing your vision and your core message leads to a change.

You have an idea or vision / mission that is important to you and with which you want to learn to make (more) impact.

Objectives

In this training we will search for your 'why', 'mission' or 'conviction' and we translate that into an inspiring personal core message. You can then use this key message to inspire your environment and make an impact.
