What is Mendix - a Hands-On Introduction

You are interested in learning more about the power and potential of Mendix, the leading Low-Code platform for flexible and speedy construction of custom software. Having read about the possible benefits, you would like to have some guided, hands-on experience, which will allow you to decide if Mendix is a suitable candidate tool for your organisation or not.

This half-day course will start with a background introduction, after which you will build a rudimentary chat application as a "Citizen Developer," using Mendix Studio. Additionally, you will have the opportunity to ask an experienced Mendix Architect any relevant questions about Mendix.

Who should attend Mendix - a Hands-On Introduction

This training is suitable for managers, product owners, business analysts, architects, or developers who want to know more about the power and potential of Mendix as a business tool. Technical knowledge is not required.

The training materials are in English. The training will be in Dutch or English, depending on the participants.

Prerequisites

Prerequisite knowledge and activities are:

- You have read about the power of Mendix on <https://www.mendix.com/the-mendix-difference/>
- You have set up a developer account at <https://sprintr.home.mendix.com>

Objectives

After this training:

- I am aware of the power and potential of Mendix as a business tool

- I have some rudimentary “Citizen-Developer” experience with Mendix Studio
- I am better prepared to take future decisions about using Mendix for my own organization
