What is Reskill Track: Project Manager

As a Project Manager in IT you bear a great responsibility. After all, it is your job to ensure that IT projects are executed successfully. You are the bridge between the customer facing a challenge and the IT team working on the solution. As a Project Manager you plan and manage the work of a team of IT professionals and ensure that your projects are completed within the set time, costs and quality requirements. In short, you achieve success!

In the Reskill Track: Project Manager we train you to become an IT Project Manager. During the program, which is tailored to your personal needs and characteristics, we provide you with the necessary expertise, skills and attitude that you need to make IT projects large and small successful. And of course, we prepare you for the Agile way of working that is used by many Scrum development teams. Personal skills are at least as important as technical skills.

Who should attend the Reskill Track: Project Manager

Our tailor-made approach makes this track suitable for most professionals. It is of course important that you find it fun and interesting to organize work, work with a wide variety of people and bring projects to a successful conclusion. Stress resistance cannot hurt either, because no matter how good you are, every project presents you with surprises and challenges for which you have to come up with the solution.

Prerequisites

Our Reskill Tracks always start with an extensive intake, carried out by one of our training experts. You also do an assessment to accurately determine your training needs. Based on the intake and assessment, we put together a custom Reskill Track for you that seamlessly matches your personal situation.

Objectives

The exact objective of this Track depends on your personal situation and seniority. After successfully completing this track you will be able to successfully start your first role as Project Manager in IT.
