What is Metadata Management

The importance of data is becoming more and more clear. Data represents value, so it must be handled with care. That's why you want to know as much as possible about this data ... data about this data ... metadata. Metadata Management teaches you how maximum value can be obtained from metadata.

You are introduced to terms such as

- Business Metadata
- Technical Metadata
- Operational Metadata
- Data Catalog
- Metadata Repository
- Horizontal lineage
- Vertical lineage

We will discuss the different types of metadata and how this metadata comes together in a Metadata Repository. We also discuss how Metadata Management contributes to being in control of your data, how it contributes to higher Data Quality and how it contributes to making a thorough impact analysis.

During the training, the application of what you learn is central and you are challenged to work with the given theory in practical cases. The training is given by people who work in practice within Metadata Management and know what it is about. We are happy to transfer that practical knowledge.
